Dear Selden Middle School Families,

This morning, I received reports of a threat to our building. I worked with the Suffolk County Police to investigate the threats and they were deemed non-credible. The Police confirmed that they were recycled posts online connected to the hoax threats previously circulating at our high schools and through various other schools on Long Island. Everyone at Selden Middle School is safe.

The safety of our students and our staff is paramount and, as such, we will continue to investigate all reports of this nature. As parents and guardians, you are strongly encouraged to monitor your children's social media and internet use and to speak to your children about alerting an adult if they see something inappropriate or upsetting online. You are also encouraged to contact the police department if you feel that any online content that you see may constitute an illegal activity.

Sincerely,

Andrew Bennett
Principal, Selden Middle School
